HARTFORD, CONN., FRIDAY, MARCH 31, 1905.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

Death of Colonel Jacob L. Greene.

On Wednesday the college and the city were painfully shocked by the news of the death of Colonel Greene, president of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company.

For the last 12 years he had been a member of our board of trustees, and for nine years was its secretary.

Those who are best acquainted with his life unite in giving him a place among the most distinguished citizens of the commonwealth.

COLONEL JACOB L. GREENE.

Colonel Greene was born of sturdy New England ancestry, in August of 1837, at Waterford, Me. His upbringing was that of the country-boy, and his ambitions were those which have marked the early years of so many who began life under similar circumstances. He prepared for college in the local academies and was graduated at the University of Michigan. His tastes at first urged him toward the legal profession and he had just entered upon the practice of the law when the great call came that so profoundly modified the lives of our people and the course of our civilization. Fort Sumter was attacked, and young Greene, then in the full prime of his youthful strength, was one of the first to volunteer. He served valiantly in the cavalry, receiving promotion from time to time for gallant and meritorious conduct. In June, 1864, he was taken prisoner and was not exchanged for some Colonel Greene was a speaker of rare persuasiveness and force and was in constant demand as a lecturer upon many sorts of business and social topics. As the years thickened about him his nature took on an added something which could hardly be termed seriousness, but which might be called joyous solemnity. He cared for the deep, spiritual things of life and perceived the relative sizes of human interests with increasing clearness of vision.

His relations as a trustee of the college have been primarily with the faculty rather than with the undergraduates. Nevertheless we knew him well. He was a friend to all of us, a thorough believer in Trinity and a faithful guardian of her interests.

Like the late General Hawley, he was an adopted son, having received the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1904. Like him, also, Colonel Greene was one of the speakers at the flag-raising on the campus in 1894, accepting the gift from the alumni and from the Grand Army posts in behalf of the trustees of the college. He was grand marshal at the inauguration ceremonies last October and made the formal certification of the election of the new president.

Since his death it has come to our knowledge that he had accepted an invitation to speak on some Sunday morning in our Chapel on "The Special Religious Problems of the Business Man."

This address will never be delivered. But his whole life that is now closed is an exhortation and inspiration for us all.

Colonel Greene was fortunate in many ways. He was fortunate in ancestry and in his bodily and mental gifts; fortunate in that his youth came to him during the heroic period of our national life; fortunate in later finding scope for his peculiar talents. Yet all these things would have counted for nothing without the fine elements that made up his many-sided character—without his courage, his sense of honor, his integrity, his lofty idealism. His life-long manifestation of these traits will preach to us, his successors, even though the voice is stilled.

Westminster Defeated in Practice Baseball Game.

The baseball team opened its season Wednesday afternoon by an interesting practice game with Westminster School on Trinity field. The diamond was in fair condition though just soft enough in places to prevent good footing and fast fielding.

Six and a half innings were played, Hyde being used by Coach Foxen in the box for the first five innings. This was the second game in which Hyde had ever pitched and he did remarkably well, having good control though little speed. He was struck for five hits. Badgely was given a chance in the sixth inning and struck out two men.

The game was very good for so early in the season. Only two errors were made.

The men went up in the air in the first inning, but steadied down as the game progressed and the excitement of their initial contest wore off.

Holt, the Westminster shortstop, played the best game for his team. The summary:

The Game With Princeton.

On the eve of the game with Princeton, it is hard to say what the outcome will be. It is safe, however, to predict that the team stands an equal chance of winning. Every man has rounded into good shape and with a little confidence, better results may be expected.

The game with Westminster was more of an experiment, the team taking all kinds of chances, being merely satisfied with winning the game.

The hitting was very weak, however, when we consider that the pitching was only mediocre and a decided improvement will be necessary in order to accomplish satisfactory results. Neither field had much to do, and the runs scored were the result of poor playing and should have been easy outs. In Saturday's game, however, the team will be put to the test. Princeton, while expected to play a good game, is badly crippled and is not by any means at her best.

COL. JACOB L. GREENE.

Trinity College is again called upon to mourn the death of an adopted son, Colonel Jacob Lyman Greene, LL.D., of Hartford.

Though but a son by adoption, he nevertheless served his foster college mother with a zeal and an integrity that could hardly have been surpassed had he been nurtured and trained by her. As a member of the board of trustees and as secretary of that honorable body for many years, he was ever watchful of her interests and zealous for her welfare. His deep interest in the college and his good counsel in matters relating to her well-being, will be sorely missed in that body, with which he has served so long.

A brave, loyal soldier of the Union when that Union was in danger, a philanthropist and an active Christian worker up to the time of his death, he may well be said to have lived his life for the same grand cause as that for which his new Alma Mater was founded.—pro Ecclesia et Patria.

MR. CARNEGIE FAVORS SMALL COLLEGES.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, at a recent banquet in his honor given by the alumni of Stevens Institute, said:

"If I had a son I should prefer to have him enter upon a professional career such as you chose rather than any other. I have been looking largely into small colleges of late and I have entered into the college business, as I not long ago entered into the library business. I think a young man who goes to a small college derives a better education than at a large one.

"I like to see men, not excelling in football or things pertaining to the foot, but excelling in head expansion.
Sport is too generally taking the place of valuable knowledge at the big
colleges."

On account of the space taken up by a notice of the death of Colonel Greene, the series of articles on the lives of notable Trinity men, which was to have been begun in this issue, is postponed until next Friday's issue.

New Floating Laboratory.

A Corporation Plan.

Trinity Students as well as alumni will be interested to know that the plans for the status of the new floating marine biological laboratory have been materially changed during the past few days. The promoters of the project have now decided to form a separate corporation for the laboratory, which, although distinctly centering in Trinity, will yet be independent of the college.

Two thousand shares, at $5 a share, have been issued for sale, over three hundred of which have already found purchasers. When sold, these shares will be held almost entirely, if not entirely, by Trinity men.

The real advantage of this plan is evident. In the first place Trinity college will be relieved of the responsibility of it, and in the second place, those contributing to the fund will have something definite to show for their money in the shape of a personal part ownership in the boat.

This final plan in regard to the floating laboratory will, it is expected, prove attractive to Trinity men. Even undergraduates have already begun purchasing stock, and all the shares will probably be sold in a short time.

The Track Team.

Captain Goodale's Advice to the Squad.

About this time almost every season, questions are asked as to what kind of a track team we are going to have. The answer to that inquiry this year is that the prospects are very bright; the number of meets perhaps is not as large as usual, but we hope to make that up in efficiency. The first meet will be the out-door inter-class meet about April 17, although the date is not definitely fixed. The first intercollegiate meet is with Union on our field on May 6, and I want to urge every man who is trying for the team to stay here during the Easter holidays. From May 1, when college opens, to May 4, is not time for a man to get in condition again after a vacation, so everyone must (if possible) remain here and work.

The annual New England intercollegiate meet at Worcester comes on May 19-20. The management is trying to obtain another dual meet, but it is not yet known whether a meet can be agreed to. If no further dual contest can be arranged, a larger team than usual will be sent to Worcester and that team will be composed of those men who work best and who show themselves most capable.

The team will be strong in some points and only fair in others, but everything depends on the condition of the men. The sprinters, middle-distance men and distance men are all good; the hurdles will be well cared for, as will be also the high jump. In the pole vault and broad jump we shall be only fair, but perhaps men can be developed for those events. The weights will be our weakest point but there is good material in college, if it can be brought out. And now the one essential thing is once more for everyone to work and train with a will. Don't make the captain come around every other day and ask why you were not out, but take it upon yourself to do your share. Perhaps you will not make the team this year, if you are a new man; there are men in college today, prominent in athletics, who when they first came knew scarcely anything about their special event. And how was this obtained? Only by good, hard, faithful work. Let everyone show their spirit and come out till the end of the season.

ALLEN R. GOODALE,
Captain.

The Dramatic Club will rehearse in Alumni Hall at 6:45 o'clock this evening.

At a meeting of the senior class held yesterday morning the following members of that class were appointed to represent the undergraduate body of the college at the funeral of Colonel Greene this afternoon: Charles M. Rhodes, and W. Blair Roberts.

EVERY man who has seen it says it is the most valuable publication on Smokes and Smoking ever produced. It is magazine size, handsomely printed in colors, and costs us 50 cents to produce and mail each copy—but comes to you FREE for the asking.

This book in fact, might justly be called the Smoker's Encyclopedia and will often save you the annoyance of buying cigars you do not like, as a cigar affords a satisfactory smoke only when it suits your individual taste.

Our new Cigar Book is full of information about all kinds of cigars—Imported, Clear Havana, Domestic; about tobacco growing, treating and manufacturing; about cigarettes, pipes and smoking tobacco.

It tells you how and why we can assure you cigars better in quality by 30 to 50 per cent. than the same money can possibly buy in any other way, and enables you to prove this at our expense, without the risk of a single penny.

Our Cigar Book will bring to you all the advantages of our great chain of over 300 retail stores—you have the same stock to select from, and the cigars are delivered, prepaid, at your door at exactly the same prices as sold over our counters.

AN INTERESTING FACT.

On the 1st of March, 1904, THE CONNECTICUT MUTUAL reached a stage in its history very interesting to its management and its members and one which is unique in the history of American Life Insurance.

On that date, but little more than fifty-eight years from its organization, it had received from its members in premiums the sum of $228,376,268, and had returned to them or their beneficiaries $228,724,073, or $347,805 more than it had received from them.

The Connecticut Mutual is the first American Life Insurance Company to return to its members one hundred per cent. of its receipt from them. And it holds besides $65,000,000 of assets, with a surplus of over $4,600,000 to protect over 70,000 policy-holders insured for over $166,000,000.
